No End of Blunders, Repetitions, and In-congruities, Not to Mention New Mat-ter Added-The Sums Appropriated. WARRINGTON, March 18.—The Indian Approprintion bill, which contains more jobs to the Congress, or any other Congress, has at last been issued in printed form, after a rather suspicious delay at the Government Printing

The bill comprises sixty-two pages of compast matter, and is a most intricate piece of parliamentary mechanism. It is literally full of blunders, crudities, and incongruities. Whole sections and provisions are repeated and duplicated, treaty stipulations and agreements are frightfully entangled and interwoven, and great deal of new matter is added to the form m which it left the House and Senate.

This was done on the individual responsibility of the conference committees, composed Samuel W. Peel of Arkansas, and O. S. Gifford of South Dakota on the part of the House, and L Dawes of Massachusetts and Wilkinson Call of Florida on the part of the Senate.

Although, in all other respects, the act is one of the most carelessly constructed ever placed men the statute books, yet the gentlemen reous and marvellous care in looking after pelous and marvenous correys, agents, and the interests of the attorneys, agents, and ers who ply industriously between Washinstee and the Indian reservations.

For instance, to the paragraph providing for the payment of $43,600 to the Western Miami in Kansas and the Indian Territory for lands alleged to have been unjustly taken from them. and $18,370 extra on account of wibal funds given against their protest to perseas not entitled to them away back in 1854. the significant provision is added by the conreflect that he had before any part of it is paid there shall be deducted and paid from it the promised attorney's fee. Without an express provision making such an appropriation im-mediately available, the money would not be forthcoming until July 1, proximo, when the mediately available, the money would not be forthcoming until July 1, proximo, when the now fiscal year begins.

The other blocks of money are likewise made immediately available by the action of the conferees; $30,0.0 for payment to the Sisseton and Wahreton bands of Sioux Indians on Devil's lake reservation for land claimed by them under an old treaty; $7,095 to be paid to 127 eltizens of the Creek Nation, who contrived to subsist themselves for a year without Government aid; $19,848 as proceeds or balance of sales of the Cherokee Strip, to be forwarded to the Trusturer of the Cherokee Nation as trust funds of the tribe; $30,000 for the construction, purchase, and use of irrigating machinery and appliances in Arizona, montana, and Nevada, or the use of the Indian reservations; $603,200 of the whole $2,203,000 apppropriated for the Sissaton and Wahpeton Indians in consideration of a treaty, and to certain scouts and soldiers of the Medawakanton and Wahpakoota bands of Sioux for services rendered to the United States in the Sioux outbreak of fast; and $10,000 for the purchase of animals, seeds, and temporary support of the Shebit tribe of Utah to enable them to become self-supporting.

There is a tremendous increase in the approtribe of Utah to enable them to become selfsupporting.

There is a tremendous increase in the appropriations for Indian schools. The total appropriations for this object argregate $2,210,650, which is $367,850 more than was given for the current fiscal year. This money for the support of schools is thus distributed:

One hundred and ten thousand dollars is a "leved the school at Carliste. Pa. $100,000 for the Callocce school, in the Indian Territory; $190,000 for the Lawrence schools at other places. It is provided that at least $500,000 shall be used exclusively for the support and day schools in operation under contracts with the Indian Bureau.

Appropos of the several irrigating schemes in day schools in operation under contracts with the indian Bureau.

Apripos of the several irrigating schemes in the bill, the committees attached to it they will be bill, the committees attached to it they will be provised that the funds designed for that construction of the ditches and other works for irrigating may be expended at the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior without alvertising for bids. Advertising was always looked upon as a safeguard against fraud.

The conference even wentso far in closing up their reskless work as to incorporate in the act an entirely new section to appropriate for the payment of an alleged debt of the Government which is not yet due and cannot be considered due until a decision in the case is rendered by the Court of Claims. The sum is $117.790.

By careless, also, were the architects of this unique bill that they left out the date of an important treaty with the Cherenne and Arasehos tribes. By the agreement with the Grosvettres and Arickarees, who are stated to have vasily more land than they need or will ever make use of, and who relinguished their title to certain lands in the Fort Berthold reservation in Dakota the sum of $30,000 is appropriated annually for ten years to pay them. This amount, in all $800.

So it is not yet an appropriate of the actual value of the land sold and so prodigal for the needs of the tribe that a precautionary provision is inserted that whenever in the opinion of the President the annual installment shall be found to be in excess of the amount, as be found to be in excess of the amount required in carrying out the agreement. Iso much of the amount as is excessive shall be placed to the credit of the Indians in the United States Treasury and expended after the last installment of $80.000 shall have been paid, in "continuing the benefits of the treaty." A junketing trip for twelve fortunate Crow chiefs, to visit the President for general consultation is provided for, ont for general consultation, is provided for d $5,000 is set aside to defray their expenses.

The first application for repayment of the direct tax, under the act of the last Congress, was received at the Treasury Department today. It was from Gov. Hill of New York, and the amount of money called for was $2,225,000. The application must be scrutinized by the Pith Auditor, the First Comptroller, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the offers who made the original collections. When the account is verified, a draft for the amount will be sent to the Governor of New York, the money to be held in trust for distribution to the iersous who paid the tax or their heirs.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Minister, had a conference with Secretary Blaine at the State Department this afternoon. It related principally, so it is said, to the arrangement of preliminaries for the submission to arbitration of the various questions at issue in regard to Echring Sea fisheries, on the basis sugguested by Mr. Blaine and accepted by Lord Salisbury with certain modifications.

The President and party returned to Washington this afternoon at 8:15 o'clock. He said he had entoyed his visit to Bengles very much and that he thought he had been fairly successful with his gun.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the celebration of the beginning of the second century of the American patent system, which will occur in this city on April 8, 9, and 10, is in receipt of numerous emmunications from all parts of the country from inventors and manufacturers, indicating a widespread interest in the celebration. Several thousand of the most prominent inventors of the country, including Edison. Bell. Corliss, 6imms, Westinghouse, C. K. Marshall, Andrew Carnegie, &c., have signified their intention to participate. The opening meeting on April 8 will be presided over by President Harrison.

A statement prepared at the Pension Office shows that during the week ended March 7. 1891, there were issued 5,430 pension certificates of all classes, the first payments on which aggregate $700.264. The average first payment to each pensioner was therefore $129.20.

The Spanish Minister denies most emphatically that there is any foundation for the ramors circulated yesterday in New York of a revolutionary outbreak in Cobs. or of any dissatisfaction of any kind whatever existing that might lead to a revolt. If any outbreak had securred the Minister says he would have been informed immediately by the Captain-General of Cubs.

ACCUSING PROF. SMILEY.

Does He Want to Embarrans the Fish

Washington, March 13.-Prof. Charles W. Smiley of this city, the special agent of the Eleventh Census, in charge of the division of fish and fisheries, has been temporarily releved from duty, the work of his division Stopped and the agents under him recalled from the field, pending an investigation into charges which have been preferred against charges which have been preferred against him affecting his official conduct. The charges are, manly, that Prof. Smiley has used his official position and influence to discredit and emberrass the United States Fish Commission, and that in consequence of his having thus occupied a large part of his time and that of his special agents, the value of the work of his division has been seriously impaired. These charges are now under investigation by the census officials, who will seen make a report to Superintendent Forter. Parl omlier, why was a one time consected with the United States Fish Commission, and is well and favorably known here among scientists, makes a positive denial of the charges and confidently expects a complete undication.

THE GREAT SHOW STORM IN ENGLAND.

Villages Isolated-Rallway Trains Caught in the Brifts-Widespread Suffering. LONDON, March 18.-While throughout the London district a thaw has set in and is causing considerable inconvenience to travellers, there are no signs of moderation in the southwest of England. A heavy snow storm pre-The country roads are utterly impassable, huge snow drifts preventing any communica-tion between the different towns and villages, and causing some apprehension among the numerous villages that depend, almost entirely, on the towns in their neighborhood for food and fuel.

In the case of a number of them actual starvation; will stare them in the face if the weather does not moderate soon sufficiently to allow them to be revictualled. Efforts in this direction are already being made, but the snow storm's fury impedes the work.

In addition to the enormous losses suffered by the farmers in sheep and cattle, either rozen to death in the fields or smothered beneath the mountainous snow drifts, large numbers of horses have perished in a like manner.
The farmers and villagers are living on their reserve stocks of bacon and ham, and are turn-ing to their hen roosts and pig stys for a further supply of food. As the country laborers and artisans have no such reserve stocks to fall back on, they are already suffering severely. In the majority of villages and the smaller of the snowed-up towns all the shops smaller of the snowed-up towns all the shops and schools are closed.

One of the curious incidents of the storm was the anowing up near Exeter of an old-ashioned four-horse coach. The passenger were compelled to camp by the roadside. They then tried to make themselves as comfortable as possible by building a large fire and by improvising a rude but of branches torn from the trees bordering the highway. When rescued the entire party was badly frozen and in a state of complete exhaustion. A mail train was snowed up near Dousland. frozen and in a state of complete exhaustion.

A mail train was snowed up near Dousland, in Devonshire, for two days. When it became evident that there was no means of reaching Dousland or of returning the way it had come, the railroad porters and the conductors, after a conference with the passengers, decided to try to push on to Doulsand on foot to obtain provisions, and, if possible, to bring conveyances to enable the passengers to reach places of shelter.

provisions, and, if possible, to bring conveyances to enable the passengers to reach places of shelter.

After terrible sufferings they managed to reach Dousland in safety. But they were unable to return, and so terribly was the storm raging they could not persuade others to form a resoue party. In the mean time the passengers, a number of ladies among them, were half frozen. They built fires near the cars and heated the water tank foot warmers, the only means of heating English railroad cars, and thus did their best to keep themselves warm, but with little success. When, after forty-eight hours of this distressing experience, the passengers were finally recorded, they were in a pitiable condition. So terribly did the ladies suffer that a number of them are now at Dousland confined to their beds and under medical treatment. Several of the men suffered almost as much from exposure and want of food.

Large numbers of people had experiences similar to those of passengers on the Dousland train. Many others had narrow escapes from the dangers of collisions of trains with trees thrown across the railroad tracks by the weight of the snow on them. Several trains were derailed, but no loss of life occurred.

West Corawail has been isolated since Monday last. The first communications with that district were opened up to-day. In many places the snow drifts are ten feet high. It is said that the present storm is the most severe that has occurred in England in fifty years. On the railroad west of Taunton, between Totnes and Plymouth, five trains are snowed up.

THE ASTORS NOT PRESENTED

All Their Entertaiments Postponed on Ac count of the Death of Mrs. Paul. LONDON, March 13 .- On account of the death of Mrs. Paul, mother of Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, news of which reached London this morning, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Astor was presented at the Queen's drawing room this the last moment. Hrs. Astor had spent a fabulous sum for a dress for the occasion. The Astors have also announced to their friends that all the proposed entertainments at Lansdowne House will be indefinitely postponed on account of Mrs. Paul's death. The announcement which appeared in last week's society papers to the effect that Mrs. William Astor, aunt of William Waldorf Astor, who is staying at the Bristol Hotel, would be has caused considerable amusement among Americans here, who are aware of the unfriendly feelings existing between the two families. It is rumored that Mrs. William Astor is greatly annoyed at the report, and has asked the papers to contradict it.

The Queen's second Drawing Room held today was equally brilliant with the first, held last week, although there was a smaller attendance to-day, it was of special interest owing to the large number of Americans present.
The weather was fine and enormous crowds were out watching the carriages of those who stiended the ceremony.

A wonderful display of roses was a marked feature of the day. The demand for roses was unprecedented, and florists imported great quantities from Italy and the south of France.
The United States Minister and Mrs. Lincoln, Miss Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, and Lieut, and Mrs. Emery were in the diplomatic body. Mrs. Lincoln, being in mourning, was dressed in black velvet. Mrs. McCormick wore a gown of poppy-red brocade trimmed with crèpe and heavily embroidered with gold and jewela.

Miss Medill of Chicago, who was also presented in the diplomatic circle, wore a dress of pink satin, with a gold-embroidered train of white antin, and carried a bouquet of carnations and liles. Miss Lincoln wore a white satin gown ornamented with silver embroidery.

Other Americans presented were: Miss

NEW BOOKS. Brief Eaviews of Important and Interesting New Publications.

In "Atman," a novel by Francis Howard Williams (Cassell Publishing Company), one of the characters, Dr. Perdicaris, a Greek physician, has discovered a means by which he can hold souls in solution. The Doctor is a prying and unserappious Theosophist. He is also a professor in a London hospital, whither the ambulances bring a good many grievously in-jured persons, and it is his practice to see that some of these do not recover, and even to ex-pedite the end upon occasion, his ulterior pur-pose being to catch their departing souls and put them away in handsome little glass vials upon a shelf. These hospital souls are of no particular importance to him. They are commonplace affairs, of the fortieth or fiftieth grade maybe, and he uses them carelessly for ordinary experiments. For a first grade soul, however, he finds a use which forms the chief feature in Mr. Williams's story. Dr. Perdicaris has brought over from Paris a young woman, Mile. Monover from Faris a young woman, mis. mon-tihery, who is physically and intellectually per-fect, but without any soul whatever, and ac-cordingly, of course, unable to fall in love with the Doctor, which is the thing precisely that he desires to have her do. He discovers finally a soul that he thinks will be suitable for her. He kills the owner, Miss Margaret Haviland, an English heiress—a physically plain young person with the exception of a brow which would force the admiration of any beholder-and catching her soul in one of his little glass vials, carries it off and recetablishes it in the person of Mile, Montihery. But the result is a great surprise to him. The young woman from the Boulevard, being invested with the Margaret Haviland, loves not him. Dr. Perdiparative stranger, a square-jawed artist named Volff, who is just finishing a notable picture for the Academy. It is Karma, the Doctor says, and he goes away to his lodgings and shoots bimself. Nor is Mile. Monthery any more fortunate. Wolff remembers her as she was before she obtained a soul, and withholds his consideration from her, and she becomes a Sister of Charity, and when the great fire o curs in the lofty building, in the top story of up to the imprisoned artist, and inhaling flame it all illustrates—at least we suppose it does— the inevitable manner in which Atman, the Great Self, absorbs all souls finally, though presumptuous individuals, like Perdicaris, may toy with them for a little while. The story is much more interesting than Mme. Blavetsky's Key to Theosophy" or Col. Olcott's Bombay letters. We are glad to read under the head of "Facial Expression" in Mr. F. Townsend Southwick's "Primer of Elecution and Ac-tion" (Edgar S. Werner) that the nose has few actions and is not capable of many changes, and that it is the centre of the face, and. like the torso, which is the centre of the body, must maintain a dignity commensurate with its position. These suggestions are in the nature of a maintenance of the idea of which we have always approved, that it is well to restrain gesticulatory expression. To be calm and dignified with the nose is good advice for any orator. So convinced is the distinguished German actor, Herr Possart, of this fact that in many of his characterizations he wears false noses, which are quite incapable of any movement of an independent kind. The bold parabolns—seemingly of pasteboard—which he assumes as King Lear, or Shylock, or the Duke of Alva, never flex or quiver, but their eloquence further remark of the author to the effect disgust and contempt, is somewhat surprising to us; but we acquiesce without reservation in the companion statement that "both nostrils drawn up is the bearing of a mean, evil-minded person." The safe, general rule, undoubt-edly is, to keep the nose quiet. "Fixed and immovable and like a tower," is the wise motto for the conduct of this organ in ordinary. The significance of gestures is comprehensively explained in Mr. Southwick's tice in bearing, movement, and speech are numerous and explicit.

We onote with pleasure the many charming features of Mary Catherine Lee's new novel. In the Cheering Up Business" (Houghton Mifflin & Co.). She is a skilled literary workman, and this story is marked by graceful description, delicate humor, and deftness of manipulation generally. Of the plot and body of the tale we cannot speak so highly. Little happens, and we cannot regard one of the main ideas of the book-Marion Kenneth's yearning for a male parent, namely-with entire seriousness. This girl is actually dving for the want of a father, and the discovery of a father for her-a father whom she has never seen-is all that saves her from dissolution. We cannot weep for Miss Kenneth-not in good faith -and we are glad to have Rebecca, the other heroine of the story as a contrast. Rebecca has healthy sentiments, and is generally witty nd agreeable. She modifies the impression arising from Miss Kenneth's peculiar disposition, and affords the title to the book. "In the Cheering Up Business" is an example of clever writing, but it is not a moving story. It sketches a number of New England characteristics with grace and skill, though not with concentrated and vivid effect. If Miss Kenneth were out of it we should not be reminded so incongruously of the famous search of Capt. Marryatt's Japhet, and we think it would be improved. The plot of "A Social Lion," a comedy, by Eugene Sheridan (New York), has the merit of being entirely familiar. We have been impressed especially by two of its lines, one near the beginning and one not far from the end of it. The first is uttered by Lord Marley, who is suspected by one of the characters, although it is still very early in the play, of being bogus. The suspecting character advises Lord Marley to clear out before he becomes the victim of a kicking, a proposition to which Lord Marley, with great self-restraint and dignity, replies.

"Sir, you go too far!" And the second is uttered by the confiding girl, Ada, after it has been established by the Delective that Lord Marley really is bogus. She is the last to be convinced, but when conviction is irresistibly forced upon her, she pathetically exclaims, "Then it is true! Oh, ma!" The whole story of "A Social Lion" is revealed in these two lines. And what lines they be!

Macmillan & Co. afford "The Statesman's Year Book" for 1891. This is the twenty-eighth annual volume of this admirable work of statistical and historical reference, which shares with the "Almanach de Gotha" the reputation of being an absolutely trustworthy guide. Mr. Frederick Martin was the editor of the Year Book" for twenty years, and made it famous by his skill and care, and his succossor, the present editor, Mr. J. Scott Keltie. Librarian to the Royal Geographical Society. maintains the great value of the publication. The "Year Book" lives up to the times, not merely nominally, but in fact. There is seemingly no want or flaw in contents or arrangement. It is a great book.

"The Relation of Life Insurance to Inebriety" is a curious little paper by Dr. T. D. Cro-Medical Association. The author thinks that what are called moderate drinkers ought to pay dvanced insurance rates. Many secret dripkers carry large insurance, he says, and he instances" a prominent temperance lecturer" who has two or three "drink storms" a year. each of a week's duration, and "a clergyman with rich relatives" who has drink paroxysms in secret every spring and fail. The clergyman is "a prominent Prohibitionist." and has his life insured for $50,000.

From Harper & Brothers we have "Campmates, a Story of the Plains," one of Kirk Monroe's very interesting tales of adventure for young people, handsomely illustrated: Charles and Mary Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare's Tree_lie..." also illustrated the illustrations including the Felton portrait of Shakespeare; and the second book. "Harper's School Speak-re." containing graded selections in poetry and prose, an admirable collection compiled by Mr. James Baldwin. Ph. D.

"Mademoissile Izs." by Lance Paleoner (Cassell Publishing Company), is a fastinating little story. The pictures of English domesticity are skilful, natural, and delightful, and the James Baldwin, Ph. D.

interjection among them of a frightful bit of foreign political heroics affords a surprising and an exceedingly powerful contrast. The tale is told with such quiet art that the reader has no suspleton of the strength of its spell. It is rarely well done. "The Soul of Man." by Dr. Paul Carns (Open Court Publishing Company. Chicago), is an investigation, physiological and psychological, with views as to the ultimate cause; and it is nothing derogatory to remark, in the words of Dr. Faustus concerning the transcendental part of it, that it leaves us just as wise as we used to be.

The "Fifth Annual Report of the Ohio State Forestry Bureau" contains, together with statistics. a number of pertinent essays of interest and value contributed by Mr. Adolph Leue. (The Westhote Company, Columbus).

A second series of "Chesterfield's Letters to his Godson" is published, with portraits and illustrations and facsimiles, in two exceedingly handsome little volumes of the style known as the "Knickerbocker Nuggets," by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

An essay, by Mr. Henry D. Barrows, on "International Bi-metallism." being one of the thirty-nine essays submitted to the Concours-Cernuschi in May, 1890, is printed by Stoil & Thayer, Los Angeles.
"Sawyer's New Testament." originally published in 1858, is republished, with radical changes and improvements, by the author, the Rev. Lelcester A. Bawyer of Whitesboro, N. Y. "Pulpit, Pew, and Platform" contains a number of the pulpit and platform utterances of the Rev. Dr. Wharton of Baltimore (Wharton, Barron & Co., Baltimore).

"Frederick Douglass, the Colored Orator." by Frederic May Holland, is published by Funk & Wagnalls, in their series devoted to "American Reformera."

TENNYSON'S "CYCLE OF SONGS."

Sung in London Last Night to Music Composed by Lady Tennyson. LONDON, March 13.-Tennyson's "Cycle of Songe" was sung at St James Hall to-night by the tenor, Bispham; the contraite, Buratlowski, and the soprano, Carlotta Elliot. The Cycle includes four unpublished poems. The music, by Lady Tennyson, is original. but rather overstrained. The elaborate dramatic accompaniments had been revised and were finely played by Mile. Janotha. The programme was well received by a large audience which included Princess Beatrice and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. and Duchess of Connaught.

The musical settings show Lady Tennyson to be a gifted musician. The songs include "To Sleep." Airy Fairy Lillian. "Break, Break," &c. The new songs are unpretention. They include a revision of "Home They Brought Hee Warrior Dead," which reads:

"Home 'hey brought him siain with spears; They brought him home at even fall; All alone she sits and hears Echoes in his smpty hall Sounding on the morrow."

The members of the Royal Amateur Orchestral Society, in which the Duke of Edinburgh is the leading violin, played selections during the concert.

American Insurance Companies in England LONDON, March 13.-The question of the po-England was brought up in the House of Com mons to-night by Mr. Fry. who asked Mr. Goschen, the Chanceller of the Exchequer, to rebate the income tax on insurers in American repare the income tax on insurers in American companies.

Mr. Goschen repiled that the question whether such insurers ought to get a rebate had been settled in the courts. The difference of the treatment of British companies from that of American companies did not rest merely on technical grounds.

Insurers in British companies had an advantage by a rebate of the income tax on premiums but the companies paid a tax on their vantage by a rebate of the income tax on pre-miums, but the cempanies paid a tax on their investments. Foreign companies holding in-vestments abroad had an advantage by having no income tax to pay. Therefore there could no income tax to pay. Therefore there co be no claim to a remission here. This reply settles a long pending disputa.

London, March 18.—A blue book on the Newfoundland dispute with France is about to be issued. It gives the correspondence be-tween Lord Salisbury and M. Ribot, concluding with the Arbitration Convention. Lord Salis bury proposed arbitration of the widest scope but M. Ribot refused to go beyond a reference to arbitrators on the construction of treaties affecting pertain points.
It was finally agreed that the arbitration should be limited to the dispute regarding the lobster factories. Each Government will be represented on the Arbitration Commission by two delegates, besides whom the Commission will be composed of three foreign jurists, already selected—one Bussian, one Norwegian, and one Swiss.

Justice Stephen to be Retired. LONDON, March 13.-The case of the Hon Sir James F. Stephen, Justice of the Queen's Bench division of the High Court of Justice, whose mental condition has of late been a matter of discussion, has been settled. A matter of discussion, has been settled. A committee composed of the Lord Chancellor, the Master of the Rolls, and Lord Chief Justice Coleridge was appointed by Lord Salisbury to make an exhaustive inquiry. To-day Sir Andrew Clarke, on behalf of the committee, reported that Justice Stephen was undoubtedly insane and consequently unfit to discharge the duties of his office. The conferrees also decided that Justice Stephen should resign, and recommended that he be retired on a pension equal to his salary, which is £5,000 a year.

DUBLIN. March 13 .- The court has adjudiated William O'Brien a bankrupt on the petition of Lord Salisbury in the latter's suit to recover the sum of £1.700, the costs in the action for libel brought against him by Mr.
O'Brien and in which the latter was non-suited.
M. Herman Raffalovich, the father-in-law of Mr. O'Brien, has offered to discharge the debt, but Mr. O'Brien has declined to accept the favor.

If Mr. O'Brien is unable to sit in Parliament for a year, and if at the end of that time he is still confined in prison, his seat in the House of Commons will be declared yearnt and an election for a new member will be ordered.
